

LEGATE AND SMEDLEY
HELD FOR FORGERIESTwo Tulsa Men Charged With Attempting to Cash Soldiers'
Bonus Checks.

Carl E. Legate and O. E. Smedley, charged with forgery of two soldiers' bonus checks, were held under bonds of $1,000 at the close of their preliminary hearing before J. H. Wilkins, United States Commissioner, Saturday afternoon.

Smedley made bond for his release at the close of the hearing and Legate's counsel stated that his client's bond would be made within a few days.

Legate and Smedley were arrested at Sapulpa April 18 by Chief of Police Willard of that city, as Legate was attempting to cash a $100 government bonus check made payable to Wesley E. Smedley. Legate first told the officer that his name was Stiles. It is said, and that the signature on the check was his own.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—An official report by officers of their department who investigated complaints that prisoners at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., were kept in an unsanitary cell and denied with water from a fire hose was made public today by the war department. It said that Captain Charles W. Jones of the 49th infantry, who had charge of the part of the guardhouse in which the men were held, ordered the hose turned on them because of their refusal to obey when ordered to keep quiet as not to disturb prisoners sleeping in nearby cells.

Most of the prisoners in the cell were conscientious objectors, the officers reported, and had been locked up for refusal to work.

Realism Heightens Thrills
in Rex Beach's "The Brand"

Noted Author, in Supervising Production on His Goldwyn Pictures, Makes Certain the Camera
Will Reveal No Artificialities.

ROBERT McKIM, RUSSELL SIMPSON AND KAY LAUREL

There is a fight scene in "The Brand," Rex Beach's tremendous Yukon drama which is said to rival the fight in "The Spoilers," but Rex Beach himself says the situation is more tense and the battle more impressive owing to the mental state of the combatants. This is just one of the hundreds of details which enter into this great big story.

Beach's Newest Play.

The scenario of a Rex Beach photo-drama is only less replete with satisfying detail than a Rex Beach novel. Both represent the work of the author in the two mediums of expression in which he excels. His photo-dramas are as much a part of the American novelist as his literary works. He gives his utmost to both.

"The Brand," his newest play, which opens at the Majestic today for three days, in its scenario form contains numerous directions for the proper production of the drama. They include not only a psychological analysis of every character but the action itself was described vividly. A score of illuminating details were furnished by Mr. Beach,

Scores of phone calls from the citizens of Tulsa are received daily, both at the police station and the mayor's office, complaining that boys and some girls, are trespassing on private lawns and stealing roses. Two Girls Skin
Down Sheet From City Jail Window

Descending hand over hand a rope made of bed sheets tied to the iron casting of a jail window, Myrtle Taylor and Bonnie Whitman, two girls at the city jail, lowered themselves safely to the pavement of the alley adjoining the station at 10 o'clock last night and in full view of the amazed pedestrians tripped lightly away before the police discovered that a jail delivery was in progress.

When one of the officers rushed from the station into the alley to investigate the cause of the excitement a third head was emerging from the window and two feminine hands were upon the improvised ladder ready to make the perilous journey to freedom, but spying the policeman approaching the head withdrew and the exodus was suppressed.

The two women were arrested a few hours before for disorderly conduct. They are well known to the police, but their recapture had not been effected at an early hour this morning.
